As usual, he then became more agitated, stating that he was being shuffled between the regulations of two agencies and was involved in a "Catch 22" situation. He said that he had employment, but that there was no guarantee that we would pick them up again. [REDACTED] said that his problem is that with the exchange of [REDACTED] has "written him off their books and he is not going to be a sacrificial lamb." He again said that he is not going to pull an [REDACTED] but will deal with facts. He believes that while there is no legal commitment to reemploy him, there is a moral obligation to do so. He then rambled on about Agency drunks who are dried out and given medical retirement. He still feels that he made a substantial contribution to the Agency. STATINTL

I then paraphrased paragraph four of [REDACTED] memo (copy attached) of 16 September 1976, in which [REDACTED] reported that Mr. [REDACTED] file had been considered in every component of the Operations Directorate and that [REDACTED] application had been the subject of three separate meetings of the Junior Officer Board. I told [REDACTED] that there were no valid requirements for his services.

He asked if he could have this information in writing and I agreed to furnish it to him (copy attached). I have the feeling that he is beginning to see the picture and he would like to have this letter to re-establish his position

This letter will confirm your conversation of 22 September 1976, with [REDACTED] of this office. Your application for reemployment with the Agency has been reviewed in every operational component of your previous directorate. In addition, your application has been the subject of discussion at three separate career service board meetings. On all occasions, the components have stated that they have no valid requirements for your services. As you will recall, the Director stated in his letter of 14 May 1976 to [REDACTED] that "If any of our former employees wish to reapply, they should feel free to do so. I cannot, of course, guarantee their reemployment since our hiring has been and will continue to be severely limited. We will, of course, give these former employees every consideration." We have now completed this review and I must report that we are unable to offer you reemployment.

Fred:

At a recent Air Force Association meeting that we had on 22 September, the individual identified on the business card which is attached made inquiries about the possibility of Agency employment. I told him that I would have the necessary forms forwarded to him (no commitments were made) and that I would advise him of the location

Please take care of this for me.
